The flames were discovered about 4:3 o'clock, and two alarms were turned in at the box at that corner, and very shortly af-terwards the entire Fire Department was on the ground. There was abundance of water at hand—in plugs and in the canal—and numerous streams were at once put on the burning building, but with no effect other than saving adjoining property. The fire originated on the second floor in the L, which fronts Canal street near Seventh and spread towards Cary street, destroying the two main buildings and all that the buildings contained.
